BOETTGER—SANDERMAN

The Evangelical Manse was the scene of a quiet ceremony, Wednesday, March 4th at 1:30 p.m. Rev. Amacher officiated when Miss Norma Wilby, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Sanderman, became the bride of Mr. Gerald Blanchard Boettger, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Boettger of New West Minister, B.C.

The bride wore a gold frock and an off-the-face hat with a corsage of talisman roses and fushias.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was served at the bride's home to the immediate family. The table was centered by a three tiered cake and carnations.

After the luncheon they left for a short honeymoon and on their return will take up residence in Didsbury.

PRATT—HUGHES

St. Cyprians Anglican Church, Didsbury, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, March 4th, when Gwyneth Rachel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Hughes of Didsbury, became the bride of J. David Pratt, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Pratt, also of Didsbury. Rev. A. D. Currie officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a lovely floor length gown of white satin and lace. Her veil of embroidered silk net was caught to the head in halo style with a coronet of lace and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and maidenhair fern.

Miss Myra Hughes was her twin sister's bridesmaid, and was attractively attired in a gown of mission blue crepe. She wore a bandeau of white gardenias and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Ronald Thomas attended the groom, and Messrs. Allen Hughes and Walter Pratt were ushers.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Thomas Jenkins of Calgary.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother who received the bridal party was attired in brown crepe. Her corsage was of yellow and bronze tea roses. The groom's mother wore a black crepe dress, and her corsage a bouquet of pink tea roses.

Assisting in serving the dainty buffet luncheon were Misses Dorothy Leisemer, Una Jenkins, Jacey Ray, Edith Pratt, and Mrs. Richardson.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt left by motor for Calgary and points south. Upon their return they will make their home at Didsbury.

Airman Artiste Entertains at School

A piano recital of unusual brilliance was given in the Didsbury School on February 27th by the renowned English concert pianist, L.A.C. Lloyd Cooper, for the High School music class and their friends.

The program was composed of classical and modern number and Mr. Cooper gave a brief resume of the life and work of each composer. He also explained the supposed picture or mood each selection was intended to portray.

The audience was thrilled by the brilliance of performance and were loath to let him leave even after playing several encores.

The remarks of the children following the recital portrayed very vividly their appreciation of the program. "It left me in a different mood than I have ever been in my life," "I marvelled at the way he could move his fingers so quickly, sometimes so fast that they just looked blurred as they moved up and down the piano," and "The whole recital was marvelous but I enjoyed the modern music best."

Program:

1. Clair de Lune by Debussy
2. Liebestraum by Liszt
3. Prelude in C Minor by Rachmannoff
4. The Continental by Porter
5. Begin the Beguine by Porter
6. Valse Caprice by Scott
7. Impromptu Op. 29 by Chopin
8. Etude Op. 12 by Chopin
9. Tarantella by Heller

Expect Gas Coupons Good for 4 Gallons

The amount of gasoline to be allowed for each coupon under the rationing system which becomes effective April 1, will be set at a conference to be held probably this week and is expected to be less than the five gallons originally announced, it was learned from official sources on Saturday.

The definite decision on the amount to be allowed will not be known until the proposed conference is held but four gallons for each coupon is considered a likely figure. This would allow drivers of passenger cars not eligible for preferred rating 240 to 300 gallons instead of 300 to 380 as anticipated when details of the plan were first announced.

Evangelical Church Notes

"The Bitterness of the Cross" will be the theme on Sunday morning. We tend to minimize the suffering of Jesus on the cross. He suffered in a terrible manner, both physically and mentally, in order to carry out his purpose of dying that we might live.

The Young People will have charge of the evening service, under the supervision of the Service department.

Sunday School will be held at Bethel at 2 p.m. and divine service at 3 p.m. We extend a cordial invitation to all to attend these services.

Bible School to Hold Graduation Services

The graduating class will have charge of a special service on Friday evening, March 20th at 8 p.m. in the MBC Church.

There will be a Baccalaureate Service on Sunday, March 22nd, at 2:30 p.m. The speaker for this occasion will be Rev. O. Snyder. The pastor will have charge of the 7:30 p.m. service on the evening of March 22nd.

On Monday evening, March 23rd at 8 p.m. the Commencement address will be delivered by Rev. C. E. Thompson of Wetaskiwin.

Tuesday, March 24th there will be a Ministerial convention open to all our friends with Services at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. The day will be concluded by a service of song at 8 p.m. given by the chorus of the Mountain View Bible School, under the direction of Miss Clara Christensen, instructress of voice.

A cordial invitation is extended to attend all of these activities.

One "Drive" Cancelled.

Excepting the Red Cross war service organizations will this year be supplied with funds from the Dominion treasury, and will not have to appeal for popular subscriptions, as they did a year ago. The object in making the change is of course to cut down the number of drives for money, which last year were so numerous as to check enthusiasm and threaten something like a strike on the part of contributors.

Thoughts On Rationing

If all our rationing, as it comes, is as easy to take as is the new order for sugar rationing, we could count ourselves lucky. Restrictions regarding rubber tires are really the first to strike deep into our everyday life. But because rationing that pinches is on the way, we can start now to take rationing in our stride. As loyal Canadians, all we need to know is the regulations regarding each item—and our fundamental honesty will see to it that we keep within our allotment. Housewives may find it handy to keep a record on the kitchen calendar of when sugar is bought and how much. Car owners can hold each other up to a high level of efficiency concerning tires and gasoline.

Donald Gordon, controller of the war time prices and trade board, is right in giving us a chance to prove to him and all concerned that "Co-operation, not compulsion, is the strength of democracy." Ration cards cost money—money needed for war materials. Let us not by our selfishness lose the battle and squander life on some far-off front because of too few tanks, and too few planes. We believe in the fundamental principles of democracy, honesty, unselfishness, the ability to pull together. Let us live by them.

Necessity For Regulations

Leaders of the Food Trade in Britain issued a manifesto entitled "A Spirit to Implement the Law" which appeared in a Bristol newspaper at the time rationing began over there. It reads:

"In time of war the food trade becomes increasingly important in the life of the nation. Fluctuations of prices or scarcity of supplies quickly affect every home in the country. We of the food trade, therefore, are charged with a great responsibility.

"We realize the necessity for regulations, but no law can cover every case. There are countless occasions on which it must be left to the individual to decide how regulations should be interpreted. Who, for example, can give a watertight definition of profiteering or hoarding? Everything depends on the spirit with which the individual applies the regulations to himself and his business.

"In this war the front line is on our doorsteps; we all need the front line spirit. But in the absence of apparent danger it is not easy to maintain a spirit of comradeship and self-sacrifice equal to that of the trenches. Yet the line between manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer and consumer is a life-line of the nation.

"The creative power for the great task before us can come from no human source. We need a superhuman discipline which reaches down to the smallest detail of our lives. We must have a spiritual incentive stronger than security or profit. This is our part in moral rearmament, in the building of that line of faith, honesty and unselfishness, on which our nation depends.

"If, even as a consequence of the tragedy of war, this spirit could be achieved, foundations of economic peace and prosperity might to-day be laid which would be the finest insurance for the world of tomorrow."

Privilege And Responsibility

We can keep our thinking straight about rationing. We haven't been bombed yet. Our daily life is very little different from what it was in peace time. Our gratitude should spur us on to do our utmost. Next Sunday we may hear announcement of further rationing—and the Sunday after that, and the Thursday after that. What if we are caught with but one day's supply on hand. Let's laugh and get into our stride, showing that democracy works because democrats are willing to work together.

Women have a special privilege and responsibility in the daily life of the country at this time. They do at least seventy per cent. of the nation's shopping. Many of them will be thinking with their sisters overseas, that they can begin by accepting the responsibility that lies on their side of the counter. They have determined to carry out the spirit as well as the letter of regulations with regard to buying; to consider the needs of others and to refrain from selfish hoarding. They have also determined to make frank enquiries when puzzled by a rise in price, instead of suspecting profiteering and gossiping about it; to co-operate with merchants by paying bills promptly; to take pride in thrift, and to see that nothing is wasted. In this spirit they believe that they can fight to conquer the fear, greed and selfishness which are the ultimate causes of war itself. Such a spirit cannot be rationed. It is as vital a need as our daily bread, if we are to build up a world where we and our children can rejoice in the freedom and fullness of life.

While rationing takes from us on one hand, it gives to us with the other. It gives us more and greater opportunities to build up a strong basis of civilian co-operation in Canada; a quality of citizenship that prides itself in honesty, and above all counts it a privilege to share in the sacrifices that will increase in the future.

Compressed Flour

New Process Developed Which Saves Considerable Shipping Space

A novel idea for the saving of about a third of the shipping space required to transport flour across the Atlantic has been worked out by chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The flour is subjected to pressures as high as 16,000 pounds per square inch. This pressure "squeezes out all the empty space between the flour particles."

When this compressed flour was made into bread, after several months the loaf was from 15 per cent to 20 per cent. smaller than the loaf made from unpressed flour. The taste was all right. The only apparent difference was that there was more bread in a slice.

Never miss an opportunity to make others happy—even if you have to let them alone to do it. 2453

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY?

Properties are an essential part of all plays and a detailed list should be made early in the rehearsals. The director and the players each have their responsibilities in this matter and should be prepared to assume them right from the beginning.

Floor Plan

The director should draw a floor plan if one is not found in the play book, and place the furnishings in their proper position. This will discourage any argument as to movement later, if it is all laid out at the beginning. The type of furniture, having regard to the period, color of drapes, rugs, etc., bric-a-brac needed, should all be listed. Then the dressing for the stage, the lamp on the table, the ornament on the book case, the pillows on the couch, the geraniums in the window, etc., should be noted by the director, when rehearsals are still in the early stages. Then if there is any possibility of having a difficulty about any of these arrangements to change the scripts would be a simple matter. For instance, I am doing a play in late March and the script says, "Williams' pearls." I checked with the grocer the other day and he assured me we would have difficulty in securing pearls at that time of the year. Seeing that it is an English play we are being careful to use the name of a soft, juicy apple which we will substitute for the name "Williams' pearls" at present in the script. In this same play we need a piano of the period of 1885. At a tea the other day I mentioned that I must go to the second hand stores to see if one could be secured. One of the ladies walked to the phone, called a number, chatted for a few minutes, and then turned to me and said, "I have the piano for you. Will you pay the draying charges?" So it goes. I went to see it this morning and found it to be exactly what I required, square and black, keys yellowed with age and a little tinkling sound when it is played. If enough interest can be aroused in the preparation of the play, there will be a packed hall the night of production.

Personal Props

Another list to be prepared is that of personal props for the players. Some directors ask the players to do this themselves, but often it is not thoroughly done, hence remembering the old adage, "When you want a thing done, do it yourself." I, as director make a list, which might somewhat resemble this:

Act I.
Bible (altar)
Curtains at window (open)
Candles (at altar) out.
Music (piano).
Dish with candy (piano).
Two addressed letters (desk).
Two wine glasses (shelf in cupboard, upper right).
Two lamps (out) on table, down right, and on desk.
White thread, scissors, in bowl, on shelf, upper right.
Off stage, gloves for maid (right).
And this list is checked by director last thing before the curtain goes up.

Next week, we will finish the preparation plots lists, (costume and advertising). Please include a self-addressed stamped envelope if writing for any information. Mary Ellen Burgess, Box 326, Regina.

HOW WE RECOMMEND ALL-BRAN TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Says Mrs. Joseph Pare, Montreal, Quebec: "I find KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN much more satisfactory than pills or powders. Nearly all our family suffered from constipation. Our friends suggested pills and powders, but relief was only temporary. Now we eat ALL-BRAN regularly and recommend it to our friends."

Instead of waiting until you suffer and then dosing yourself with harsh purgatives, try ALL-BRAN's "Better Way" to correct the cause of constipation due to the lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet. Eat it daily and drink plenty of water, but remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like a cathartic; it takes time. ALL-BRAN is sold at your grocer's in two convenient size packages; at restaurants in individual serving packages. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

People Do Not Change

Change Does Not Matter When Everyone Is In Fashion

The prospect that wartime civilian styles will be amplified is far from remote. But the maiden out to get her man need not worry.

Many years ago, F. Marion Crawford, who had extensive knowledge of the race on three continents, made a sage observation. "Fashion in dress," he said, "appears to exercise less influence upon men and women in their relations toward each other than does any other product of human ingenuity. Provided everyone is in fashion, everything goes on in the age of high heels and gowns tied back, precisely as did five and 20 years ago, when people wore flat shoes and when gloves with three buttons had not been dreamed of."

DEPT. OF NATIONAL DEFENCE

Army

Army News Release—From Public Relations Officer M. D. No. 13.

Young Albertans of military age who wish to learn a trade on entering the Army, which will be of great benefit to them on their return to civil life, and at the same time fit themselves to do a "specialized" job in the war effort, are provided with the opportunity under "The Army Tradesmen Training Plan." officials of Military District No. 13 announced recently.

The courses are thorough in every respect and under the plan the candidates learn a trade which would cost from $1,000 to $1,500, depending on the course, in civilian life. Another feature is that if accepted for a course, they receive regular active service rates of pay and allowances while taking the course.

In these courses men are trained to become experts as artificers, blacksmiths, carpenters, clerks, copper-smiths, sheet metal workers, draughtsmen, electricians, engine artificers, fitters, machinists, motor mechanics, tinmiths, radio mechanics and wireless operators.

The courses, which are divided into four phases, last from six to eight months for the first three phases after which comes the fourth phase, which is the military application of the particular trade.

When a recruit joins the Army, it is his privilege to state that he would like to learn a trade. He is interviewed by an officer of the Personal Selection Board. During this interview the recruit is advised in detail about the courses, and an effort is made to determine the trade for which he is best suited.

When the candidate graduates from the Canadian Army Trades School, he must have passed a trades test and he is then eligible to receive trades pay. This pay, ranging from 25 cents to 75 cents a day, according to the trade and qualifications of the tradesman, is in addition to the regular pay of rank and allowances paid in the Canadian Army.

At the present time there are six hundred men taking the second phase of trades training in M. D. 13, at trades schools in Calgary, Edmonton and Lethbridge.

ABOUT ALBERTA

EDMONTON.—Alberta may soon witness the building of one of the world's strategic military highways, if current anticipations resolve into action. Arrival of a U.S. army commission to study the proposed route to Alaska through Edmonton, Grande Prairie, Fort St. John, Fort Nelson, Whitehorse was simultaneous with Washington reports that President Roosevelt had declared the road an immediate necessity and that negotiations had been opened with Ottawa.

For a considerable time the Alberta Government has been pressing the advantages of the Inland Route to Alaska as the cheapest, fastest, easiest to be maintained of all four proposed. Now that official interest is aroused, Hon. W. A. Fallow is assembling information to present in an intensified effort to have the potentialities of

U.F.A. Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting of the Didsbury U.F.A. Local, which was held recently, the following officers were elected.

President: A. R. McNaughton
 Vice-pres: Hugh McLean
 Sec.-Treas: W. J. Scheidt
 Directors: W. J. McCoy, Frank Jackson, J. B. Worthington, Kenneth Burns, Theo. Reist, J. B. Brown, N. S. Clarke, W. E. Stiles, and Fred Metz.

Mr. Ed Parker who, as representative of the local, attended the U.F.A. convention held in Edmonton, gave a very good report.

It was decided to make a drive for membership and each member is asked to bring two new members to the March meeting.

It was arranged that Mr. William Runte, U.F.A. delegate for Wetaskiwin will address a meeting at the Legion Hall on Saturday, March 14 at 2:30 p.m.

Help win the war by using less gas and buying more harness at Scott's.

Rugby Notes

The March meeting of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. O. Krebs. Quite a lot of old woollens have been collected for re-weaving but we need lots more. A comforter recently raffled realized the substantial sum of $20.30. This money is to be used for war work. Mrs. A. Shannon, convenor of the afternoon's topic, had a very interesting program arranged and time went to soon.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harvey Hosegood.

Former Olds Farmer Invests in $50,000 Bond

Dave Grey, farmer at Olds, and well known in the Didsbury district, now retired and wintering at the coast gave the natives of Vancouver something to talk about recently when he went into a bank and wanted to buy a Victory Bond. The accountant looked David over and asked if he wanted a $50 or $100 bond. Mr. Grey replied, "Make it worth while"—"I want one for $50,000.00."

No sir! The former Olds dirt farmer was not fooling. Mr. Grey made the front page in the Vancouver dailies with a life-like cut and a story of what he had done to assist Canada in her war effort.

U.S. Army Engineers for Alaska Road

Only a couple of days after it was announced that the road to Alaska would be built, U.S. Army Engineers were on their way to Fort St. John in the Peace River block where a start will be made on the road.

The vanguard of the army men went through Didsbury on Friday while a second train went through on Sunday evening.

It was indicated the first men arriving will have but one job to do—to prepare for the men coming behind them. They will start the organization which will be necessary to house, feed and otherwise care for the Army workers. Busk houses will be needed—and medical care and recreational facilities.

It was also indicated a start on construction would be made at the other end. Two tremendous crews would work toward each other and would meet each other some where in the great open spaces of the north land.

Many big United States transport planes may work out of Edmonton taking men to the various landing fields in the north.

The United States besides paying for the road, will foot the maintenance costs during the war. Then when hostilities end, the road will become a part of the general Canadian road system.

The Alberta route appreciated. The American commission now in Edmonton is under instructions to make recommendations to Washington.

Boys we've known since babies

● We see them board the train after their last leave home . . . boys we've known since they were babies. We say "Good Luck . . . we're all pulling for you", as we bid them Good Bye. But are we? Are we "pulling" . . . all we can? What are we doing to help them? Are we giving them the things they need so badly . . . ships and tanks and guns and planes and ammunition? Are we giving them all they need? That's one thing we can do . . . we who stay at home . . . one thing we must do. We must provide the money so much needed to win the war . . . and one way to do that is to buy more War Savings Certificates.

The help of every Canadian is needed for Victory. In these days of war the thoughtless, selfish spender is a traitor to our war effort. A reduction in personal spending is now a vital necessity to relieve the pressure for goods, to enable more and more labour and materials to be diverted to winning the war. The all-out effort, which Canada must make, demands this self-denial of each of us.

Burnside Notes

Mr. Bill Hughes of High River spent a few days with friends here and attended his sister's wedding.

We are very glad to hear that Sam McAllister, who has been taking treatment in the Didsbury Hospital returned home Monday, much improved in health.

Mr. Otto Bittner was fortunate enough to have the highest ladies score, 180, in whist in the Canadian Legion country wide whist drive, and was winner of the grand prize, a War Savings Certificate.

A very enjoyable wedding dance in honor of Mr. and Mrs. David Pratt (nee Gwyneth Hughes), who were married that day, was held in the Lone Pine Hall on Wednesday evening last.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spraggs and two children of Hythe in the Peace River country is visiting the latter's father, Mr. A. Spraggs, and his sister Mrs. Otto Bittner. Bob sold his effects in the north country and is moving to B.C.

A whist drive in aid of the Legion Mobile Kitchen fund was held at the home of Mr. Fred Metz on Friday evening last when seven tables of whist were played. The top scores were Mrs. Otto Bittner and Reg Jamieson, and consolation winners were Mrs. E. Page and Sam Elliott.

Try a pair of Scott's water buffalo work shoes—the best shoes made. In 6 and 10 inch tops.

Inverness Items.

There is a correction to be made in the report of last month's War Savings Certificate winner, it being Mr. W. H. Davies instead of Mrs. W. H. Davies as it appeared in the Pioneer.

The Inverness people are busy practising short plays for a concert to be presented in aid of the Red Cross, watch for further particulars.

The Inverness Beavers met at the home of Mrs. E. Grace on March 4, with seven ladies present for tea. The afternoon was spent sewing crazy quilt blocks. The ladies sent $7.00 into the Didsbury Red Cross. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Joe Sutherland's on March 18.

Melvin Notes

Misses Joyce and Wynn Jackson spent the weekend at their home here.

Jay Chandler of the R.C.A.F. is spending his furlough with his parents in this district. He leaves for the east again at the end of this week. Best of luck and happy landing Jay.

Old Aunt Hanna who hasn't travelled for 50 years, promised her niece $50,000 when she married and acquired a family. To receive the money Kate wrote that she was married and had a child. Come and see the turn of events when Aunt Hannah decides to visit her. Don't miss the three act comedy "Emergency Family," put on by the Melvin Players in the Melvin hall on Friday, March 27th.

Don't forget the old time dance at Melvin, March 18. Music by the Merry Makers.

Our heart felt sympathy goes out to the Jackson family in their recent sad bereavement. Mrs. Edwin Jackson passed away at her home Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ace Esler of Brant spent the weekend in this district visiting relatives. They also came to see Jay Chandler on his furlough.

Mr. and Mrs. James Garson and family of Drumbeller spent Monday at the home of P. G. Johnston.

At the telephone whist party held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Youngs, Ross Youngs and Miss G. Anderson had the highest scores.

At the home of Mrs. Radford the high scores were made by Preston Radford and Mrs. E. Landeen.

Germination Tests

Last year we installed in our laboratory two modern germinators, each with a capacity of 800 samples in duplicate per week. We undertook to test samples of small grain seeds, including wheat, oats, barley, rye and flax. Nearly 5,000 samples of seed were sent in by line elevator grain buyers for their customers. The results were of great value in assisting farmers to assess the value of their own seed.

The germination tests are available again this year. Samples of wheat, oats, barley, rye or flax intended for sowing next spring should be brought by farmers to their local line elevator agent as soon as possible. Forage crop and vegetable seeds will not be tested in our laboratory, but must be sent to the government laboratories at Calgary, Saskatoon or Winnipeg.

Some times cereal seeds exhibit what is known as "dormancy." That is, seeds which are really alive refuse to germinate, especially in the autumn. This means, of course, that the true viability of some samples may be underestimated. It so happens that this dormancy, or delayed germination, as it is sometimes called, can be broken by special pre-chilling treatment. Thus, without pre-chilling, the true germination percentage may be under-estimated.

We have now installed a frigidaire unit, specially built for our purpose, which will enable us to pre-chill all samples sent in for tests.

There is so much weathered grain in the country this year that the demand for tests will probably exceed the capacity of our laboratory. The sooner samples are sent in, therefore, the better. Consult any grain buyer of the elevator companies associated with this department. He will mail your samples to us.

MATRON'S SLIM SPRING ENSEMBLE

By Anne Adams

There's a definite feeling of spring in this new frock designed by Anne Adams, especially if you make the jacket to match! Plan Pattern 4994 in a soft sheer silk or rayon print and you can wear it now and all during the spring season. Every detail is fashion-right... the soft neckline with optional scallops, the row of darts above the waist to cinch in the fullness of the bodice the choice of short, three-quarter or long sleeves, and those two panels in the skirt will deceive the eye on the width of your hips! The well-cut jacket, with long or three-quarter sleeves is a shimmering feature too and may match or contrast with the dress. If you choose contrast, do so at the same fabric as the dress.

Pattern 4994 is available in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 dress takes 3 yards 39 inch fabric.

A Canadian bomber squadron has a huge Irish wolfhound as a mascot. It belongs to a pilot officer from Montreal. When he goes out on an attack another officer takes charge of the wolfhound, which watches the Wellington bomber, with his master in the cockpit, soaring into the sky. When he returns it welcomes him with barks that can be heard above the racket of the engine.—Canada's Weekly (London).

Recalling The Boer War

When Canada Answered Her First Call For Overseas Service

Back in 1899 and 1900 when Canada answered her first call to an overseas war, Dr. David H. Baird packed up his instruments and became Cpl. Baird the first and only Canadian dentist to see service in the South African war.

"I'd like to be in this war too," said Dr. Baird. "I tried to enlist at the outbreak of war but I guess they think I'm too old."

Dr. Baird is regarded in Ottawa as the pioneer of the Canadian Dental Corps. Before he joined the medical corps in South Africa forceps carried by medical officers were the only source of relief from an aching tooth.

"Things were different in Boer War days," Dr. Baird said. We had none of your modern kitchens, expert cooks or balanced diets. Each man prepared his own food and our rations consisted of bully-beef and hard-tack, hard-tack and bully-beef. I must admit I helped myself to the odd bit of beef tea, custard and condensed milk from the invalids' supply.

"I was both druggist and dentist with the 10th Canadian Field Hospital. We used to follow the fighting line on horseback, and our hospital—a group of tents—medicine and other supplies were drawn by ox carts. The oxen would only draw by night and the greatest distance they covered in a single night was 10 miles. When it came to sleep, we rolled up in horse blankets or greatcoats and slept on the ground."

Dr. Baird graduated from the University of Toronto in 1897, he went to Ottawa a short time later and has practiced almost 44 years taking time off only to go to South Africa.

Is Being Widely Used

Few Vacant Lockers In Winnipeg's Central Storage Plant

Individual refrigerated food lockers located in a large central storage plant are the latest scientific methods of food preservation for Winnipeg's modern housewives.

The new system, now part of the regular service of a large cold storage plant, makes it possible for any family to place in their private locker any type of fresh vegetable or meat with the assurance they can take the articles out weeks or months later still fresh and edible.

Since the inception of the idea, private family lockers have increased from 300 to 500 with few vacant. During the hunting season when hunters bring in wild ducks, prairie chickens and partridges these are handed over for fast freezing and storage. The service of the plant also includes plucking and cleaning if desired.

High speed ammonia compressors service the entire plant and one new unit recently installed has a capacity of 27 tons of refrigeration daily. The plant is located in downtown Winnipeg.

Autograph Collection

Boston University Trustee Has Large Collection Dating From 1500

Courtenay Build, a Boston University trustee, has carried on a hobby started by his father and as a result has a collection of autographs of world personages dating from 1500.

The collection, started in Civil War days, includes the signatures of every U.S. president from Washington to Roosevelt. One of the most valuable signatures is that of Martha Washington, which is one of her four authentic autographs in existence.

CARE OF THE TEETH

According to Dr. M. H. Zimmerman, instructor at the School of Dentistry, New York University, most people do not look after their teeth properly. This lack of proper care has the result that by the age of 25 most people average four teeth lost; by 30, the number has increased to seven, and by 40, there are about 10 gone.

Dr. Zimmerman explains that much of the fault lies with the cleaning department of teeth care. The simple rotary movement that children make when brushing their teeth is not enough. They are first teeth, but adults must attack their molars much more vigorously. This includes daily massaging of the gums and cleaning of the crevices between the teeth.

A small brush, with a stiff bristle is best to use. Unless there is some special dental condition, any good advertised brand of toothpaste will do. There are several directions to clean thoroughly—front, inside top and bottom, outside top and bottom and the same for both left and right side teeth.

Dr. Zimmerman recommends brushing the teeth after every meal, but twice a day is actually sufficient, if the job is done conscientiously.

When trouble develops with the bone structure of the teeth, investigation often proves that the patient is not eating enough green vegetables and not drinking enough milk. Milk provides the vital bone-building calcium and phosphorus, so necessary to healthy teeth and bone structure.

Brakes now being made by some defence industries are so powerful they could stop 80-ton bombing planes rolling along the ground at 80 miles per hour in 10 seconds.

Eleven hundred miles of coastline on the Antarctic continent have been charted by Admiral Byrd's various expeditions to that region of the globe.

Cornwall, England, was the world's chief source of tin until the latter part of the last century, when it surrendered first place to the Federated Malay States.

CHAPTER XI

Tamar looked at the two men out of the corner of her eye. Ranny was positively glowering. She shivered with a warm glow. It was fun to see Ranny jealous! "Are you ready, Mr. Sande?" she asked softly, sweetly.

Ransome Todd opened the car door. Still finds himself fettered to his gentlemanly instincts, Tamar thought. Ranny closed the door carefully. "Nice to have had lunch with you, Tam, dear."

For Ranny to have added the word, dear, to his parting, was more than Tam could bear. "Tell Uncle Ransome hello for me," she said. "Everybody's related in the South, but especially around Tahlahneka," she explained to Sande. "Good-by, Ranny, dear."

Christopher Sande laughed as they drove out of town. "Of course you two are no more related than are you and I, Miss Randolph. What's it all about? Is Todd a little jealous?"

"Just a little possessive," she amended. "No, we're not related, but you'd think he is at least my brother."

"Brother! There's no advantage in that kind of a tie-up. I think he'd rather be more than a brother."

Tamar drove in silence for a moment. "He wants to take care of me. Thanks I shouldn't go driving around in the country now that the Cricket Hill is being mined again."

"I think he's right, much as I hate to admit it, Miss Randolph. Do use discretion."

I shouldn't have mentioned it again, she thought. "Here's our turn,"

she said aloud, driving into the dusty road that led to the mine. "I'll try to borrow a horse for you and we'll go riding, if you really would like it."

"There's nothing better," Sande said. He stood by the car for a few minutes thanking her for the ride. She noticed the little freckles across the bridge of his nose, and saw the auburn gleam in his hair that the sun brought out; his hands were strong and tanned.

Sande was not a handsome man, she told herself. But there was a charm the spirit of adventure or whatever it was, that made men like him conquer raging streams, drive tunnels through mountains, cross steel ribbons over forbidding waters.

Tamar turned her car about and retraced her own tire tracks in the new dust that had settled since morning. Once more her hands were trembling at the wheel. Her eyes burned from the direct light of the sun, and she took out the forgotten dark glasses and adjusted them. She drove slowly, while she fitted them over her straight little nose.

A few weeks ago she had been in despair. She knew her father was trying to get a new loan at the bank when Major Towne came to him with the excitement of his gold strike and his offer to take up the option and lease the land.

Her father had jumped at it like a drowning man grasping at a rope. Of course, she realized that he was not a really keen business man or he would have made investigations before he gave his word.

The new contracts accomplished, after she had been declared by law as half-owner of the Cricket Hill, things at Shadwell began looking up. The mining equipment had been moved in, and already the clackety-clack of the little engine that pulled the carloads of ore out of the hill could be heard for miles in the silent summer mornings.

As soon as the amalgamation mill was completed and the process perfected for its production, the gold bars would be made right on the grounds. As she pulled up a hill, she could hear the sound of a big truck. And as it approached, she could see that it carried another load of equipment to be used in the amalgamation mill.

The first week, Tahlahneka had driven out from their little town to watch the operations, but it was blistering hot the first month after the Major's strike, and they soon settled back into their unbroken lethargy.

The citizens impartially discussed the gold "diggins" along with the tale of how old man Fatten had come into town roaring drunk, and willing to sell a nugget he had discovered in a cartwheel rut, as he went to his creek to pan that day.

Tamar drove over to one side of the road and let the truck pass. She waved in response to the driver's nod of greeting.

A woman will get just as much respect as she deserves, she told herself as she remembered Christopher Sande's and Ransome's indignation at learning that she was driving about alone.

She turned into the drive at Shadwell, and Aristotle loped across the lawn. "Like foh me to polish de cah, Miz Tamah?" He stood on one foot, methodically scratching the back of his leg with the other.

Tamar said: "You did a grand job the last time. I'll give you a quarter if you'll get this dust off. Be careful and don't make a single scratch on it!"

He opened the door. "Shall Ah drive it aroun' to de back and hose it?"

Tamar stopped aghast. Where is my mind, she groaned. She got back into the car and stepped on the starter.

"Not unless I want to see it wrapped around the linden tree out there. Thanks, I'll take it around. And Aristotle, hear me, you're not to touch this car's wheel unless I give you permission!"

"Yas'm. Dat's what Ah's thinkin'."

With Aristotle busily throwing a stream of water on the car, Tamar walked up the flagstone walk to the side door. She crossed the butler's pantry, known as the "buttry," and heard Phoebe singing "Roll Jordan, Roll."

"Wants t' go t' heabin when Ah die"

"T' see Sweet John—dat you

Honey?" Her black smile-wreathed face appeared in the open door. Good times are back at Shadwell, good times like ol' Mammy used to tell about. Phoebe thought. "Time yo' got back! Yo' Mammy been listenin' for yo' step on de stai's. She's got de chess board and waitin'."

"Thanks, Phoebe." Tamar crossed the kitchen with its old fireplace at one end, and its new electric range at the other. The old, struggling for recognition against new modern replacements.

"Heah's dat ginguhbread Ah made foh yo. Wif de last ob de New Orleans molasses. Lap up dat sauce, min' me, now! Yo' lookin' peakid since yo' been busyin' yo'self so much lately."

"Thanks, Phoebe. It does look good."

Tamar shrugged her shoulders in the blue sweater, and slid into a chair at the kitchen table. I'll bet Christopher Sande would like this gingerbread she was thinking. He with his old Boston-brown-bread-and-baked-bean ancestry. But Christopher was not of the elite circle of Boston, or he wouldn't be out doing work with his hands, she reminded herself. Or was that all story-book fiction?

Phoebe sat and shelled peas into a yellow bowl, her eyes divided between Tamar and the bouncing green globules. Suddenly her deft hands stopped in mid-air. Her mouth opened ludicrously, but no words came forth.

"She looks jes lak Ah feels when dat good-foh-nothin' Bilje comes foolin' roun' wif one ob dem hams he steals fom Staffo'd." Phoebe thought. She clamped her lips together and continued her pen-shell-ing.

Phoebe stood and watched Tamar as she left the room. That wasn't like Tamar. Tamar always had a smile and a word for everybody, and especially for Phoebe's thoughtfulness.

"Sumpin' on yo' min', Chile, ah knows de look!" Phoebe said to herself.

Tamar went upstairs and chatted with her mother. They had their game of chess after Tamar had taken a quick shower and changed into lounging pajamas. Tamar had to keep her attention riveted to the chess men. If she didn't she found it straying back to the events of the morning.

Her father came up and joined them in the late afternoon. He lifted Maris over to her large chair by the window facing the Chestatee.

The telephone jangled, and he picked up the receiver. As he answered, a quick frown replaced the pleasant look on his face, and Tamar stopped turning the pages of her magazine. The room was electric with excitement. When he spoke the second time, his voice was harsh. "How badly is he hurt?"

Tamar dropped her magazine and came to his side.

"No, the nearest hospital is 25 miles away. Bring him on here at once and I'll call Dr. Forrester. Be careful with him, but hurry!"

Randolph replaced the telephone in its cradle and said, trying to keep his voice calm: "There's been a little accident at the Cricket Hill."

Tamar's heart jumped. She knew even before he spoke that it was Christopher Sande who had been injured. "I'll fix a room at once, while you call the doctor. Is it the engineer?"

"Why—yes." He vaguely wondered how she divined the truth before he had spoken it.

Tamar went methodically to the nearest guest room. It was always kept in readiness, but she inspected the linens and turned back the heavy loomed spread. She looked up to find her father in the doorway.

"How badly is he injured?" she heard her voice ask.

Fat Girl Left Alone at Parties

"Ruthie's fat but awfully nice," the hostess said. But the men prefer the slender girls somehow!

If you're a "Ruthie" you needn't accept such a fate. You can lose two pounds a week, choosing foods that cut you down to 1200 calories a day, instead of the high quantity—maybe 4,000—you get now.

It's easy. When you know your calories you can have just as much to eat. Sliced chicken has only 100 calories a serving (creamed chicken has 435), and a baked white potato (100) is as filling as a sweet potato (200).

Desserts, too, may be on your reducing menu as long as they're low-calorie—such as apple snow, 125 a cup but NOT chocolate blanc mange, 431!

By being smart about your food you win a smart figure; soon everyone admires yours!

To know your calories, see our 32-page booklet. It has a calorie chart, 42 delicious low-calorie menus, recipes for slimming desserts. Includes a 3-day liquid diet to start your reducing.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "The New Way To A Youthful Figure" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

The following booklets are also available at 15c each:

- 106—"21 Ways To Earn Money At Home"
- 188—"Easy Lessons In Guitar Playing"
- 112—"How To Make Slip Covers"
- 167—"Popular Cowboy Songs"
- 168—"Etiquette: The Correct Thing To Do"
